A Note From Father Tom

Dear Friends,

As we move into a new season of weather, of school, of activities, we come together to worship as family. Then, we are jolted by the beginning words of today's gospel! "Hate" your family??

Fr. Jude Siciliano, OP, reflects: One way to understand what Jesus says is to interpret it in light of his Semitic way of speaking. It deliberately expresses extreme opposites to get a point across. So, his hearers might not have been as jolted as we were when they heard what Jesus said. What is Jesus trying to say by his extreme mode of expression? He wants us to seriously consider the cost of being his disciples and make any sacrifice necessary to follow him.

Yes, being Jesus' disciple, being an Apostle of Hope, is a costly challenge. It was during the times of Jesus, and it continues to be in our present times. A poetic reflection by Anne Osdieck helps express this challenge in 2019.

*O Lord, it costs much to walk with you.
Carrying a cross. Clinging to no thing, no one,
except for the Father's Glory.
Family, friends, favorite chairs,
palaces, portfolios, clothes, cars, books.
Help us let go of them and more,
to take them up again only for you.
In them give us yourself. Be what we need.
Be our light, our sun, our moon, our everything.*

A heartfelt thank you to all who enabled us to reach our Catholic Ministries Appeal goal!! Now we are able to offer not only support for those in need throughout Long Island but also to attend to so many of the works and needs we have here in SSPJ. Thank you! Thank you! Thank you!

I've asked Principal Ms. Diane Anderson to fill you in on the growth and exciting new things happening in SSPJ School. You'll find her letter further on in the bulletin. Next week I look forward to sharing some of the developments in our Religious Education Program as we celebrate Catechetical Sunday. This year's new Youth Leaders will join in making part of that presentation at next Sunday's 10 am Mass.

Next Saturday is the Feast of the Exaltation of the Holy Cross. I invite you to bring a cross from your home (or purchase one for your home) to Mass next weekend. During Mass we will bless them and rededicate our homes as places of prayer.

We gratefully welcome back the Music Ministry next weekend! We've missed you! I'd like to thank our generous cantors who have so generously led us in prayer filled song over the summer. The Music Ministry is looking for new members. Please check today's bulletin for Margaret's invitation to consider becoming part of this wonderful ministry.

And,

How do you explain the difference between COMPLETE and FINISHED in a way that is easy to understand? Some people say there is no difference between COMPLETE and FINISHED.

One gentleman suggests: "When you marry the right woman, you are COMPLETE. When you marry the wrong woman, you are FINISHED. When the right one catches you with the wrong one, you are COMPLETELY FINISHED!"

Peace,

Father Tom

SECOND COLLECTION: THIS WEEKEND:
SEPTEMBER 7TH & 8TH FOR:
THE CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY OF AMERICA

Now, more than ever, the University is strategically positioned to pave the way forward and help the laity play a significant role in healing.

Through hosting a conference series focused on laity response, and in creating an Institute for Diocesan Excellence in Administration (IDEA) where lay scholars and professionals can support clergy by providing expertise and accountability, Catholic University will serve as a springboard in renewing and strengthening Catholicism in our country.

Your support of the National Collection will help us solve issues within the Church and educate graduates who will leave campus ready to impact the Church, the nation, and the world. We appreciate your generosity.

Feast of the Exultation of the Holy Cross Next Weekend September 14th & 15th Parish Blessing of the Cross

The feast of the Exaltation of the Holy Cross celebrates two historical events: the discovery of the True Cross by Saint Helena, the mother of the Emperor Constantine, in 320 under the temple of Venus in Jerusalem, and the dedication in 335 of the basilica and shrine built on Calvary by Constantine, which mark the site of the Crucifixion.

However the feast, more than anything else, is a celebration and commemoration of God's greatest work: his salvific death on the Cross and His Resurrection, through which death was defeated and the doors to Heaven opened.

We invite all families to bring your cross from home, wear your cross as we will Have a blessing of the crosses at each mass
next weekend.

For: St. Pius X Enriched Living Facility
Thank you for your compassion and generosity

Remembering and Caring for our Senior Priests

Do you ever think about a favorite Pastor or Parish Priest and wonder how they are and where they may be living?

Well, for our Senior Priests who are living at St. Pius X Enriched Living Facility in Amityville, life is good and sometimes very busy.

"We are very happy that more and more of our Priests are taking advantage of this wonderful facility. We thank you for your support, we depend on it, especially now with the increasing costs we are experiencing. We couldn't do it without you!"

- Rev. Msgr. Thomas Costa,
Vicar for Senior Priests

"Since I arrived at St. Pius X, I have found living here like being at home. I have found much happiness with my fellow priests and in the entire community, and I especially appreciate the support I receive. Thank you for helping to make this home possible."

- Rev. Msgr. T Peter Ryan

Even in retirement our senior priests retain roles as our shepherds, and St. Pius X enables these dedicated men who live there to be fully engaged members of the community. "Still on duty," they serve as our teachers, counselors, and spiritual leaders.

The special collection for retired priests living at St. Pius X Enriched Living Facility will take place next weekend. Please be as generous as possible! Thank You!

In the face of the rising currents of tribalism and nationalism Pope Francis emphasizes Brotherhood and Solidarity: “In the present condition of global society, where injustices abound and growing numbers of people are deprived of basic human rights and considered expendable, the principle of the Common Good immediately becomes, logically and inevitably, a summons to solidarity and the preferential option for the poorest of our brothers and sisters” (§ 158). - “Global consensus is essential for confronting the deeper problems, which cannot be resolved by unilateral actions on the part of individual countries” (§ 164).

Catechetical Sunday
Next Weekend
September 15th, 2019

Parents are truly the primary catechists of their children. They prepare the soil and plant the first seeds of faith. On Catechetical Sunday, we not only highlight the work of catechists in parishes and schools, but we also commend parents and guardians and encourage them to take seriously their role of making their Catholic households a place where faith is passed on to the next generation.

All Catechists are invited to attend the 10am mass on Sunday September 15th, 2019 for thanksgiving and blessing

RCIA Thoughts from Sister T

ARE YOU SEARCHING?

At some point in all people's lives we wind up searching for something. Here at SSPJ we are looking for people who are searching to deepen their spiritual life or come to understand more the writing of Pope Francis, perhaps come to know the person of Jesus on a deeper level or see how they can better serve the poor.

Being a part of the Rite of Christian Initiation may help that searching individual and lead to a richer fuller life.

If you or someone you know wants to know more, feel free to call Sister Theresita at 631-584-5454 ext. 214.

Questions and searching hearts welcome.

He who works with his hands is a laborer. He who works with his hands and his head is a craftsman. He who works with his hands and his head and his heart is an artist." ~ Francis of Assisi

I couldn't help but share this Quote with you as we are just celebrating Labor Day, the end of summer and the remembrance of our Blessed Martyrs of Nowogrodek.

On September 4th we remembered our Blessed Martyrs of Nowogrodek, Sister Stella and Her Ten companions. During the Second World War they offered their lives for prisoners taken from their families to die. The Sisters were taken and killed on August 1, 1943 in the woods beyond Nowogrodek. Sister Malgorzata the sole survivor of this brutal execution also lived a martyr's life in that she remained faithful to ministering to the people of Nowogrodek until her death in 1966. The miracle was that those they offered their lives for, were spared the death camp and returned to their families. (This is a very short version of the story)

The quote made me that each of the sisters was an artist according to St. Francis's definition. Each of them in their own way, used their hands, head and heart to care for the families in Nowogrodek during very challenging times. I am sure they had to be creative in the ways they ministered and were present to families, in the end giving of their lives for these families.

Today's challenges for families are different and worldwide, yet there are some similarities. How do we face those challenges? Do we respond to the need as a laborer, craftsman, or artist? How do we handle our own family situations or those of our friends? How do we handle families in our ministries or where we are employed? Even more how do we view the lives of so many immigrant families, what is our attitude towards them and/or their situation? I think it takes courage to speak to some of these situations, like the courage our Blessed Martyrs had. We may not give our lives physically but I am sure there is some dying to self, taking place. Do we possess the courage, faithfulness and creativity to be a true artist in the midst of family challenges? Know for sure there will be obstacles in your/our way, just as gold is purified by fire, we may have some similar experiences. We need to trust and use the tools of the Artist - HANDS, HEAD AND HEART.

May your week be one of reflecting on Francis Assisi's quote. I am sure you will find much to discover about yourself. Remember to whisper a prayer to our Martyred Sisters when you feel the challenge coming on.

May peace and courage be your companions this week,
Sister Theresita

Ps. You can find a prayer to the sisters on our website.... or should we just put the prayer there?

O Most Blessed Trinity, we praise and thank you for the example of Blessed Mary Stella and her Ten Companions, Sisters of the Holy Family of Nazareth, who by imitating Jesus Christ, offered themselves as a sacrifice of love.

God of mercy and compassion, through the merits of their martyrdom and by their intercession, grant us the grace we humbly ask..., so that like them we may witness with our lives the presence of the Kingdom of God's Love and extend it to the human family throughout the world. We ask this through Christ our Lord, AMEN

That Doesn't Make Sense!

This Week's Readings at Mass

- Exodus 32:7-11, 13-14 - The golden calf
- 1 Timothy 1:12-17 - Paul's gratitude
- Luke 15:1-32 or 15:1-10 - The prodigal son

The first two readings today are a precursor of the Gospel reading. The Exodus reading shows a courageous Moses challenging God to show mercy to the "stiff-necked" Israelites, which God chooses to do. In the letter to Timothy, Paul calls himself the foremost of sinners and relates how Christ dealt patiently and mercifully with him. Jesus then tells three stories of someone seeking someone or something that is lost and celebrating when they are found. These stories are so familiar to us we may not realize how ridiculous and shocking they would have been to Jesus' original listeners. Put together, all of these stories point to God's almost unbelievable love and mercy.

As the Gospel story opens, some good and righteous people are grumbling because of Jesus' choice of company. Once again, Jesus is found hanging around with some shady characters and ne'er-do-wells of whom the religious folks don't approve. To call them on their judgments and teach them about God's ways, Jesus tells three parables that would have left them incredulous: the parable of the lost sheep, the lost coin, and the lost son (often called "the Prodigal Son"). In each parable, the "seeker": the shepherd, the woman, and the father, suggest something about God's shocking mercy and joy in welcoming back sinners which go far beyond what the Pharisees and scribes assumed about God.

"What man among you having a hundred sheep ... would not leave the ninety-nine in the desert ..." Jesus begins, knowing full well that no shepherd in his right mind would risk the safety of the majority to save just one. "Or what woman having ten coins and losing one..." he continues, knowing that typically women wouldn't spend more than the lost coin was worth to celebrate with her friends and neighbors when she finds it. Finally, he tells the famous Prodigal Son story, which today still riles up "older brothers" about God's fairness. Put together, the three parables are meant to have a shock effect on Jesus' listeners, leaving no doubt that God's mercy goes far above and beyond what humans typically offer to each other.

Hmm...how can I be a good shepherd?

Questions of the Week

- 1 When have you shown someone mercy when others might not have approved of it?
- 2 When have you been on the receiving end of forgiveness and mercy even though you didn't deserve it?

Late Migrations

Jesus says that if we follow him, the cross, pain, will find us.

That message is chronically misunderstood. Maybe we would understand it better if Jesus had worded it this way: The more sensitive you become, the more pain will seep into your life. We catch the connection then. Sensitive person suffer more deeply, just as they also drink in more deeply the joys and beauties of life. Pain enters them more deeply for the same reason that meaning does. They're open to it. The calloused (by definition) are spared of both, deep pain and deep joy.

With this as a backdrop I would like to introduce readers to a new book by Margaret Renkl, Late Migrations – A Natural History of Love and Loss.

This book manifests a rare sensitivity. Some people are gifted intellectually, others artistically, others romantically, and still others emotionally. Renkl is gifted with all of these; particularly with an emotional intelligence which she combines with the refined aesthetics of an artist and then further combines those two with the skill of a gifted, natural writer. It makes for a good package. Content is only part of the gift of this book. Beyond its message, it's a great piece of writing and a nice piece of art as well.

It's also a book about faith, though Renkl does not express this very explicitly. She writes primarily as a naturalist, an urban Pilgrim at Tinker Creek, someone who admires nature, spends a lot of time with it, understands well its prodigal character and its innate cruelties, and understands too how those cruelties (where, within nature, life can seem cheap and easily taken) are connected to the deepest forces undergirding all life, including our own. She shares a certain complexity of character with the great paleontologist, mystic, Pierre Teilhard de Chardin, who was fond of saying that he was born with two incurable loves, a natural love of the pagan world and all its beauties and an equally strong love for the mystical, the other world, that is, the God behind this world. However, unlike Teilhard who is very explicit about his sense of God and the centrality of faith, Renkl's faith is more inchoate, though clearly manifest in her understanding of nature and in how she intuits the finger of God working inside the stories she shares.

The book is a compilation of short essays, alternating between wonderfully aesthetic descriptions of the life of the birds she feeds and the gardens she tends to equally sensitive descriptions of her own life and that of her family, particularly in terms of loss and grief as inextricably intertwined with love. A few examples:

On our shortcomings in life: "Human beings are creatures made for joy. Against all evidence, we tell ourselves that grief and loneliness and despair are tragedies, unwelcome variations from the pleasure and calm and safety that in the right way of the world would form the firm ground of our being."

On the lessons to be learned from observing nature: "Every day the world is teaching me what I need to know to be in the world."

On how sentimentality makes for a one-sided compassion: "The story of one drowned Syrian boy washed up in the surf keeps us awake at night with grief. The story of four million refugees streaming out of Syria seems more like a math problem."

On nature's beauty and its cruelty: "Inside the nest box, the baby birds are safe from the hawks, sheltered from the wind, protected from the sharp eye of the crow and the terrible tongue of the red-bellied woodpecker. [But ...] Inside the nest box, the baby birds are powerless, vulnerable to the fury of the pitched summer sun, of the house sparrow's beak. Bounded on all sides by their sheltering home, they are a meal the rat snake eats at its leisure."

On taking care of our aging loved ones until they die: "The end of caregiving is freedom. The end of caregiving is [also] grief."

On responding to a woman who insinuated that she, Renkl, was a coward because she much feared the loss of loved ones: "It occurred to me to wonder if she had ever, even once, loved anyone enough to fear the possibility of loss, but that thought was as ugly as her own, and in any case she was not wrong."

Richard Rohr suggests that we are forever dealing with the twin truths of great suffering and great love. During the course of this book, Renkl shares how her mother, a woman who could in certain areas of her life exhibit extraordinary energy and zest, would sometimes suffer through periods of paralyzing depression and how she herself is not immune to that same experience. There's a logic to that since, as Jesus says, sensitive persons drink in things very deeply, both suffering and love and the former can paralyze you in grief, even as the latter can give you extraordinary energy and zest.

This book deserves to be read.
